Tall Tales from the High Hills

by Ellis Credle

The Popcorn Patch

"I had an old mule once upon a time that fooled himself clean to death," said Hank Huggins. "It happened down in Cade's Cove where I had planted me a little patch of corn, the kind that's used for popping. It was a hot day. I didn't want to go out plowing that morning, but my old lady got after me.

""Hank,' she said, 'If you don't get out and plow that field of popcorn, the weeds will take it and the young'uns won't have any corn to pop at Christmas time.'

"I wasn't in the notion, I can tell you that. I saw the day was going to be a scorcher. But once my old lady has set her mind to something, there's no peace until it's done. So I went out, hitched up the mule, and set off to plow the cornfield.

"Heavens to Betsy, it was hot in that cove! The mountains standing up all around kept out every breath of breeze. The place held the heat like an oven. July flies were a-droning in the trees and the leaves hung as limp as a dog's tongue. It would be hard to say which was hotter, me or that old mule. Up and down the rows we went, a-toiling and a-sweating.

"Along towards noon it was broiling for certain. Even the old logs and stumps began to crawl off in the shade. Suddenly I heard a crackling sound in the air. Before I could figure out what had happened, white flakes were a-flying all around. At first, I thought it was a snowstorm. Then I realized what it was: The blazing sun had set that corn a-popping, and it was falling like a snowstorm.

"That old mule of mine, he stopped and looked around. Then he began to shiver. He thought for sure he'd been overtaken by a howling blizzard. He stood there and squinched himself all up, like critters do when it's real cold.

""Get along there!' I hollered at him. 'It's nothing by popcorn!'

"But the poor thing couldn't understand. He'd never seen any popcorn before and he thought it was snow. He just stood there, shaking and shivering in every limb. I couldn't do a thing with him. It was a crying shame. Before I could get that critter unhooked from the plow and out of there, he gave right up. He lay down in the row and froze to death--all covered up with popcorn."

Popcorn Snowmen

4 tablespoons Unsalted butter

4 cups Mini marshmallows

9 cups Popped popcorn

1/2 cup Confectioners' sugar

1 tablespoon Milk

Gumdrops, cinnamon candies, fruit leather, jelly, pretzels -- for garnish.

In a large saucepan, melt the butter over low heat. Add the marshmallows and cook, stirring often, until melted and syrupy, about 5 minutes. Place the popped popcorn in a large lightly greased shallow pan. Pour the syrup over the popcorn, tossing to coat evenly. While still warm, form 6 balls about 5" in diameter from the coated popcorn for the bottom sections, giving the balls flat bases so the snowmen will stand. Form 6 balls about 3-1/2" in diameter for the middle sections. Then form 6 balls about 2" in diameter for the top sections. Stir in the confectioners' sugar and milk together until smooth. Use the icing to stack three popcorn balls of decreasing sizes into a snowman, then attach candies to decorate. (Gumdrops for hats, fruit leather for scarves, etc.)

1 teaspoon Vanilla
1/2 cup Popcorn -- popped *

In a heavy saucepan put the maple syrup and butter. Cook to 260~ on a candy thermometer. Remove from heat and add the vanilla. Stir well and pour over the popped corn. Shape into balls. Both pecans and walnuts are good with maple, it's hard to say which is better.

Wonder Popcorn Bread

1 1/2 c Water
2 1/2 tb Butter
1 tb Sugar
1 t Salt
2 tb Vital gluten
1 c Milled popped popcorn
3 c Bread flour
2 ts Yeast

Pop popcorn. 1/2 cup popcorn yields 8 cups. Mill the popped popcorn. 8 cups of popped popcorn will yield 4 cups of fluffy popcorn flour. Put ingredients in breadpan in order given. Set for rapid bake. The resulting loaf is high and light--the texture almost of "Wonder Bread" but much more flavorful. I milled the popcorn in my electric Miracle Mill but the hand mills should work fine, too. Popcorn must be compressed a bit as it's entering the mill and a wooden lemon reamer works well as a "stuffer". Do NOT attempt to mill unpopped popcorn in your electric mill. I can only break those hard kernels with my Back to Basics hand mill. The extra popcorn flour can be frozen in a ziploc and stored for future loaves. The fragrance is wonderful!

Yogurt Glazed Popcorn

10 cups Popped popcorn -- *

1 cup Plain yogurt

1 cup Brown sugar

1/3 cup Light corn syrup

* 2 tbs unpopped popcorn makes 4 cups popped popcorn.

Put popcorn in a large bowl. In a 2-1/2 quart saucepan, combine yogurt, brown sugar and corn syrup. Cook and stir over medium heat to hard-ball stage (250~ on a candy thermometer). Don't try this recipe without a candy thermometer - the temperature must be exact. Pour the syrup over the popcorn, stirring to coat.
